About these images

These photos are only some of the men from this area who served in World War I. The information (in many cases incomplete), has been updated to the best of our abilities, and to the degree that the records allow. Where an occupation or address is also included, often that would be at the time of enlistment, although in some cases it may be earlier or later. Unless otherwise indicated, addresses are in Nelson.

●Green dots = Survived the war, ●Yellow dots = Wounded and (usually) survived, ●Red dots = Died as a result of the war. Dots are not included where the current information is incomplete or unclear.

Nearly 67,000 Canadians died in World War I, and one of every two Canadians who served overseas were either killed or wounded. There are 280 names on the cenotaphs at Nelson and along Kootenay Lake¹.

For more information, please visit the Shawn Lamb Archives located downstairs in this facility, or read Names on a Cenotaph by Sylvia Crooks, available for purchase at the front desk.
